About Jay Butler

The University of the District of Columbia is under 8th year head coach and two-time Independent Collegiate Athletic Association (ICAA) Coach of the Year Lester L. Butler, Jr. The team finished their 2010-2011 season with a 19-9 record. Coach Butler's accomplishments range from winning two straight Independent School NCAA Division II National Championships and a NCAA Tournament appearance with an overall record of 24-5. The firebirds also achieved precedence by being ranked as high as #17 in the nation, the highest ranking ever for the program. The 24 wins surpassed the 21 wins by the 2007-2008 team and gives UDC an overall 76-35 record in the last four seasons.

Since being promoted to head coach in 2003, Butler has changed the view of the University of District of Columbia women's basketball program. Bringing stability, vision and a love of the game to the program, Butler has earned the respect of his opponents while establishing Firebird women's basketball as a competitive force in NCAA Division II.

A 1998 graduate of Virginia Union University with a degree in criminal justice, Butler played for legendary coach Dave Robbins and was a key member of the Panther basketball program. He helped Virginia Union capture three straight CIAA Championships and make four NCAA Division II appearances. In 1996 Butler's senior season, he guided his team to the NCAA Division II Final Four. Butler finished his career at Virginia Union tied for most wins with a (107-14) won-lost record. Butler served as team captain from (1994-1996).

A native of Washington D.C., Butler graduated from Archbishop Carroll High in 1992 where he earned All Metro honors and Honorable Mention All-American Honors.
